

NEW YORK BIRD LIST REPORTS 1999

Compiled by Berna Lincoln

PO Box 296, Somers NY 10589 (BernaLincoln@aol.com)

From the reports of the 95 people who participated in this activity in 1999, records fell all over the map. The 95 participants was a record in itself and many added significant numbers of counties to their reports. More people are having more fun with this than I ever dreamed possible! Where to begin?

Suddenly, five more people reached the goal of reporting from all 62 counties: Tom Dudones, Bob Grosek, Judy Heintz, Roger Heintz and Rich MacDonald. They join the three who had made it in prior years.

Judy and Roger Heintz stunned and delighted me by writing that they launched a quest to visit and bird in all 62 counties in 1999 – and they accomplished it! Pioneers, they added a whole new dimension to county listing. Birding all counties in a single year is surely something no one else had even thought about doing and will probably not be replicated until they retire in a couple of years, when they want to do it again. So, they did it without the leisure of retirement and they did it from their home base in Plattsburgh, which is about as far away from everywhere else in the state as you can get. They didn't rush off to see the rarities (although they saw a few) but, traveling when they could this time, they had a high of 201 species in their home county, Clinton, and a low of six on a highway drive-through of Bronx. Incidentally, American Crow is the only species they saw in all 62 counties. Judy, who says they are "misplaced midwesterners," wrote, "Oh! we did have so much fun and we have learned so much about New York." I hope all reading their story love and appreciate it as much as I do.

A record five reporters had 1999 Annual State Lists of 300 or more species. Gail Benson (who had 312 in 1997) set a new record of 327. We understand that she didn't even set out to do it but realized, somewhere along the way, that she was on the fast track and just kept going and going. Congratulations, Gail!

With an overnight in Letchworth State Park on our way west in May, my husband, Stan, and I finally became the first to reach the reporting threshold of 100 in all ten Regions. Bill Watson came awfully close to joining us until he realized a Prairie Warbler he thought he had in Region 9 turned out to be in Region 8, leaving him with only 99 in Region 9. Bill certainly gets the gold for honesty and candor and we hope he chased that bird over the border in 2000.

Two young birders (age 18 and under) sent reports from multiple counties: sixteen-year-old Erin Hewett and eight-year-old Mark Russell. Their reports are marked with ■. Many of us met Erin at the 2000 Annual Meeting in Waterloo, which she attended as a Lillian Stoner Fund awardee. Mark does much, but not all, of his birding with his father, Dave, who wrote, "I make him identify anything he sees, and those I do not see I make very sure he knows what he's talking about." Coached so well, Mark is obviously a force to be reckoned with!

Along with all the wonderful stories and comments you send with your reports – and I wish I could include them all – comes the occasional question. Dave Russell poses a good one about how to deal, on a county basis, with birds seen (and they aren't all "pelagics") in offshore waters. Since we're making our lists based on political boundaries and counties, as far as I know, have no jurisdiction very far offshore (nor, after a certain point, do states), I think we're going to have to make up our own rules. My proposed definition is: Off our southern coast, first make sure, by whatever means available to you, that you're in New York State waters as defined by NYSARC in 1977 (Bull's Birds of New York State 1998 pg 5-6). Then determine, as best you can, the nearest point of land and which county it's in and add the bird to that county's list. In and around New York City's Upper and Lower bays, use the boundaries delineated in the DeLorme New York State Atlas and Gazetteer.

Since none of this can be exactly precise, unless you spend all your time plotting positions and thereby missing the birds, my best advice is to do the best you can and, of course, count the bird in only one county unless it clearly moves into what you've determined is an additional one. If anyone has other ideas on how to set these proposed parameters, I'd be happy to hear about them and take them into consideration.

DeLorme is the standard for boundaries on all enclosed water bodies also, such as the Great Lakes, Lake Champlain, Long Island Sound, Hudson River, etc. (I know, it doesn't do a thorough job on Lakes Ontario and Erie but I think you can figure it out.) An important point to remember is that boundaries in these waters aren't always "in the middle" and you really do need to consult a map. A very good example is the south shore of Oneida Lake where Onondaga and Madison counties include the shoreline but none of the lake's waters. When I stood on that shore and saw Snow Buntings flying over the water, they were in Oswego County until they chose to land near my feet in the parking lot in Onondaga. Had they veered off before crossing the shoreline, well, no tickie in Onondaga. Which brings up that old question, sometimes still raised. The answer is: It's where the bird is, not where the observer is.

As noted on the report form, only lists submitted for 1999 are printed here. The only "holdovers" are high counts reported in prior years that haven't yet been surpassed. They're at the end of this report.

The 2000 report form will be in the January New York Birders and you'll need to send it in, even if your numbers haven't changed, to get on next year's printed report.

An asterisk (*) means the person named resides in the county reported.
